SUMMARY

As a seasoned full-stack developer with seven years of experience, I've honed my skills to create seamless digital solutions from front-end to back-end. My journey began with mastering HTML, CSS, and JavaScript for crafting captivating user interfaces that deliver exceptional user experiences. Over the years, I've delved into various frameworks like React, Angular, and Vue.js, leveraging their power to build dynamic and responsive web applications.

On the back-end side, I've become proficient in languages such as Python, Node.js, and Java, architecting robust server-side systems that handle complex business logic efficiently. I've worked extensively with databases, including SQL and NoSQL variants, designing schemas and optimizing queries for performance. My expertise extends to deploying applications on cloud platforms like AWS, Azure, and Google Cloud, ensuring scalability and reliability.

Collaboration is key in my approach; I thrive in agile environments, working closely with cross-functional teams to translate client requirements into scalable solutions. Beyond coding, I prioritize clean code practices, documentation, and continuous integration and deployment strategies to streamline the development process. With a passion for staying updated on emerging technologies and trends, I'm committed to delivering cutting-edge solutions that exceed client expectations.
